Dewey Holds Key to Situation at Manila---Expedition to Philippines Strengthens Sentiment for Hawaiian Annexation,

WASHINGTON, May 24,-Wild rumors were presistently circuated yesterday to the effect that Sampson and Schley had met the fleet of Admiral Cervera in the Windward Passage. Embelishments were added by fertile imagination and the rumors finally had it that the New York and Iowa, of Sampson's fleet, had gone down.

All this was in spite of the continued and emphatic denials the State and Navy Departments of any knowledge whatever of an engagement. At the close of business to-day Secretary Long said that no news of a conflict had been received.

The Government positively denies any news of the reported of ture of the U. S. gunboat Mangrove. The report is said in official circles to be sensational and groundless

Persistent Rumors of a Battle.

London, May 24.—(Special.)—Persistent rumors were in circula tion here early to-day to the effect that a great naval battle has been fought in the vicinity of the Windward Passage, between the Eastern end of Cuba and the Western part of Hayti, in which both the American squadrons closed in on the Spanish Cape Verde squadron, commanded by Admiral Cervera, and completely destroyed the Spanish ships.

The London newspapers take it for granted that the ships report vesterday by Lloyd's agent at Para. Brazil, as having arrived there at o'clock on Monday morning from Rio Janeiro are the Oregon, the Marietta and the Nictherov.

Movements of the United States Fleet.

Key West, Fla., May 24 .- (Special.) -The movements of the United States fleet, which are known here, make it absolutely certain no battle has yet occurred, but an engagement is expected to take place this week. The Spanish fleet has been definitely located.

"REMEMBER THE MAINE"

On Havana's wide bay did our battle-ship float, While its three hundred seamen thought danger remote: With no evil intention, they scorned to deceive, And low treach'ry in Spain they were loth to believe.

But when darkness had deepened, in alumber they lay, Safely riding at anchor, they thought, on that bay; Never dreaming of evils there hid in the deep, Where the low-swelling billows segmed almost asleep.

All the storm-winds were hush'd into peaceful repose, And a tropical breeze o'er the waters arose; In its mission of peace there that vessel did ride, While it rocked to and fro on the swell of the tide

But a bitterness burned with a merciless hate, So vengeful in some that they plotted the fate of that ship—that seemed only menacing to Spain, So they slyly determined to blow up the Maine.

In a moment, unwarned, were the forces unseen, Set in motion through spite, void of honor, and mean; While a merciless cruelty prompted the deed, Never caring, methinks, as to what it might lead.

From their slumbers of peace, in an instant was hurl'd, (In a way that gave shock to the civilized world.) That crew, unto death—Christian people would scorn, Since a high sense of honor 'mong nations was born.

By the hand of a savage no crueler deed Ever made the great heart of humanity bleed; Revolting the motive, unreasoning and black, For its wild waves of woe they can never call back.

Down the ages to-come will that record of crime Mar the hist'ry of Spain, till the wind-up of time; Through the cons uncounted, will quiver that groan, For which no surrender can never atone.

was a shock to the civilized nations afar, Who in sympathy felt the deep quiver and jar; Now the towers of absolute monarchy sway, Till methinks they'll soon totter and crumble away.

In the march of our arms will new liberties rise, As oppression gives way and intolerance dies: May our Banner of Freedom, here flung to the breeze, Soon float in all lands, on all oceans and seas

Now, ashamed to acknowledge, or even condemn, Though the world says the guilt justly rests upon them; And an ocean of blood cannot wash out the stain, Of dishonor and guilt, for the wreck of the Maine.

And that merciless monarchy nothing can save; Now the grasp that has long made humanity groan, Will slacken, till earth shall new liberties own. Hopkinsville, Ky., May 24, 1898.

COINS OF ALUMINIUM

English Public Belleve They Would Be Very Acceptable.

Aluminium has acquired so rapid a popularity for a wariety of purposes by reason of its lightness, its cleanliness and its brightness that it is remarkable it should not have been used before for the smaller denominations of coins as a substitute for the far heavier and dirty copper and bronze. To the people who have to carry large sums of money in small denominations the change—for the change is bound to come sooner or later in our own country—will be most welcome. A man presented by the conductor of an omnibus with 11 pence as change for a shilling invariably grumbles at the weight which he is condemned to carry about with him, and a woman equally resents the excessive weight which is added to her purse by a similar transaction.

The adoption of aluminium coinages would change the whole of this and make the acquisition of penmise a pleasure mather than otherwise, for the metal is far brighter even than silver, and retains its luster for a nuch longer time.

It will no doubt be urged that the use of a silver-colored metal would lead to all sorts of frauds being per-petrated on the unwary, just as there were at the time when silver three half-penny pieces or "anattic". were at the time when sixther three half-penny pieces or "quattie," as it was called, were withdrawn from circulation in Jamaica, and nickel pennies and half-pennies were substituted for it. Then the negroes were frequently defrauded by the unscruptious, who pained of pennies as half-crowns and the half-pennies as shillings. But in a very short time he negro got to understand that silver coins were milled at the edge, and the dishonest people ceased having a good time of it. There is, however, an additional natural advantage in the use of aluminium, for its weight is so different that it would seem to be an impossibility for anyone to make a mistake in the matter.—Pearsor's Weekly.

TAI WON KUN

Corea Boasts the Wickedest Villain That

Corea Boasts the Wickedest Villain That Ever Lived.

The recent death of Tai Won Kun, father of the king of Corea, simplifies that country's politics. He was probably the wickedest villain on earth, and for 50 years had been at the bottom or the top of all the mischief that has occurred in the Hermit kingdom. He was regard during the minority of the king, who inherited the throne from a childless uncle, and ruled with the most brutal despotism for a quarter of a centrury. It was while he was at the head of affairs that we had our little war with Corea, which resulted in opening the country to foreigners. He was the foo of all forms of progress, and particularly hostile to missionaries and modern improvements. He murdered thousands of people who stood in his way or refused to bend to his will, and it took three years for the government to get rid of him after the king become of age. Twice he was the prime mover in plots to assassinate his own son, and three times attempted the assassination of the queen. The last attempt was successful in 1895.

The old secondrel lived in a palace a few miles outside the city, surpounded by a double guard, one of his own, in whom he had confidence, to protect him against the vengeance of those he had injured, and another provided by the government to prevent him from leaving the place. He seems to have died a natural death, and it is almost a miracle, for no other man on earth was so viciously hated—West of Constructed Sentenced. CONFERENCE ADJOURNS.
